BOARDING SCHOOLS.

ALASKAN FIELD.

SHELDON JACKSON SCHOOL, SITKA, ALASKA
(Co-educational).

Enrollment 1911–12, 128.

1880 Mission Day School opened in Government Guard House. A few boys begged to live at school, providing their own food and bedding.

1882 School building erected under direction of Doctor Sheldon Jackson.

1884 Home for Girls, with Mrs. McFarland, Principal, moved from Fort Wrangell to Sitka and a second house built. The united schools formed the beginning of the Sitka Industrial and Training School.

The Sitka cottages, occupied under certain restrictions by married Christian natives, provide model homes on Mission ground.

In the course of years the school buildings became unsuitable and inadequate. After the death of Doctor Sheldon Jackson in 1909, funds already in hand were increased from many sources and the Sitka Training School, henceforth the Sheldon Jackson School, has now a beautiful home consisting of six large buildings thoroughly equipped and carefully adapted to industrial and academic work.

MARSHALL.

1894 Work opened in an abandoned warehouse. Extended until a church, manse, well-equipped academy, and teachers' home made Marshall a center of Christian influence. Little Pine, Big Pine, Walnut Spring, and Walnut Run Missions are outcomes of the Marshall work.

1908 The increased public school facilities and the strength of the church warranted the Board in withdrawing higher school work from Marshall. The Woman's Board still supports a kindergarten teacher, whose efforts also second those of the pastor in community work. The library, club house, classes in cooking and handicraft, with helpful social intercourse, touch every phase of the community life.

1912 Field enlarged to include Walnut Spring and Hopewell.

ELIZABETH PENROSE . . . . . Head Worker.

Grad. Charleston Kindergarten Training School; Teacher, Monarch Mill Kindergarten, Union, S. C., 9 months; Present position 1912.

"The Laurel Field."

Named "Laurel" from the branching creek on which most of the stations are, and from the masses of rhododendrons on its banks and on the mountain sides. The stations on the present list are Allanstand, Big Laurel, Gahagan, Shelton Laurel, Upper Shelton Laurel, Revere, Rice Cove, Spill Corn, and White Rock. The opening of each was in response to the awakened desire of the little community. The length of the school period may vary from year to year according to the needs of the people or the provision for the public school. Sometimes one teacher has the care of two schools. Sometimes for a year or two a missionary only has charge of the station. For these reasons no "average enrollment" is given.

FRANCES L. GOODRICH . . . . . Superintendent.

Headquarters House, White Rock.

Attended Private Schools, Yale Art School, and studied in New York Studios; Became affiliated with the work as a Volunteer, 1890; Later commissioned at Allanstand, from which point the work in the Laurel Field was established; Present position since 1901.

MEDICAL WORK.

ALASKA.

HAINES HOSPITAL.

Founded 1907.

At Haines, already mentioned, the urgent need of the ignorant natives induced the minister to plead for some relief for the sick and dying. Since 1907 part of the Mission building has been used for hospital and dispensary work. This has been in charge of a missionary nurse, whose efforts have been encouraged and strengthened by the Board's missionary, and who has also been ably assisted by the Post physician. During the past year there have been 40 patients in the hospital, 27 operations, 1,200 office calls and dispensary treatments, and 747 calls in the homes. The good accomplished already more than repays the efforts made, and now that a missionary physician has been added to the force, the outlook is bright.

REV. ALLEN F. MCLEAN . . . . . Superintendent.
F. J. SHADD, M.D. . . . . Physician.
MRS. F. J. SHADD . . . . . Nurse.
